Case No. 5:20-cv-03664-LHK

ADMINISTRATIVE MOTION TO CONSIDER WHETHER CASES SHOULD BE RELATED

Civil L.R. 3-12, 7-11

I. INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to Civil Local Rules 3-12 and 7-11, plaintiffs in Hewitt, et al. v. Google LLC, No. 5:21-cv-02155 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 29, 2021) (“Hewitt”) move the Court to relate, but not consolidate, the case to the above-captioned action, Brown, et al. v. Google LLC, No. 5:20-cv-03664-LHK (N.D. Cal. June 2, 2020) (“Brown”), and Calhoun, et al. v. Google LLC, No. 5:20-cv-05146-LHK (N.D. Cal. July 27, 2020) (“Calhoun”).

Hewitt is currently pending before Judge Labson Freeman. Brown and Calhoun were related under similar circumstances. After Calhoun’s initial assignment to Judge Freeman, Judge Freeman sua sponte referred Calhoun to this Court to consider whether Calhoun is related to Brown. This Court related those actions. Dkt. 46. While some legal theories differ between Hewitt, Brown and Calhoun, the Court may find similar efficiencies in litigating Hewitt before the same tribunal, given that the same operative Terms of Service and policies apply; that this Court has developed proficiency in analyzing their application to causes of action also pled in Hewitt; that there may be some risk of different conclusions of law; and coordination of the cases may be more efficient if they are pending before one Judge.

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

Civil Local Rule 3-12(b) provides that “[w]hen a party knows or learns that an action, filed in or removed to this district is (or the party believes that the action may be) related to an action which is or was pending in this District . . . , the party must promptly file in the lowest-numbered case an Administrative Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should be Related.” Here, Brown is the lowest-numbered case, and both Brown and Calhoun concern similar events and legal claims to those asserted in Hewitt. Declaration of Lesley E. Weaver (“Weaver Decl.”) ¶¶ 3-5.

Brown*: Plaintiffs in Brown filed their class action complaint on June 2, 2020, and their First Amended Complaint on September 21, 2020. Brown asserts claims on behalf of a subset of Google account holders against Google LLC (“Google”) over Google’s collection of data while they are in private browsing mode. Weaver Decl., Ex. 1 ¶ 8. Plaintiffs allege Google collects the following information when plaintiffs are in “private browsing mode”: (1) GET

1 requests, (2) IP addresses, (3) “fingerprint” data, (4) user IDs, (5) geolocation, and (6) the 2 information contained in Google cookies. Id. ¶ 63. Plaintiffs also allege that Google associates
 3 this information with profiles it maintains on users. Id. ¶ 93.

4 Plaintiffs in Brown seek to represent a class comprising “[a]ll individuals with a 5 Google account who accessed a website containing Google Analytics or Ad Manager using 6 any non-Android device and who were (a) in ‘private browsing mode’ in that device’s 7 browser, and (b) were not logged into their Google account on that device’s browser, but 8 whose communications, including identifying information and online browsing history, 9 Google nevertheless intercepted, received, or collected from June 1, 2016 through the present.”
 10 Id. ¶¶ 192. Plaintiffs in Brown bring claims for violations statutory and common law, and seek 11 damages, disgorgement, injunctive relief, and all other relief the Court deems appropriate. Id.
 12 ¶¶ 202-266.

13 Calhoun: Plaintiffs in Calhoun filed their class action complaint on July 27, 2020, 14 asserting claims against Google for its unauthorized collection of the personal information of 15 users of Google’s Chrome when they had not enabled the browser’s “Sync” function. Weaver
 16 Decl., Ex. 2 ¶¶ 1, 13. Calhoun alleges that Google collects the following information
 17 regardless of whether Sync has been enabled: (1) “unique, persistent cookie identifiers”, (2)
 18 “browsing history in the form of the contents of the users’ GET requests and information 19 relating to the substance, purport, or meaning of the website’s portion of the communication
 20 with the user”, (3) “the contents of the users’ POST communications”; (4) “[t]he user’s IP
 21 address and User-Agent information about their device”, and (5) the user’s X-Client Data 22 Header. Id. ¶ 134. Plaintiffs also allege that the collected information “is reasonably capable 23 ... and ... does link such information with individual consumers and their devices.” Id. ¶ 46.

24 Plaintiffs in Calhoun seek to represent a class of all persons in the United States who 25 used Google’s Chrome browser on or after July 27, 2016 without choosing to “Sync” with any 26 Google account and whose personal information was collected by Google. Id. ¶ 259. Plaintiffs 27 bring claims for breach of contract, statutory, common law and equitable claims seeking 28 damages, restitutions, disgorgement, punitive damages and injunctive relief. Id. ¶ 13.

1 On August 5, 2020, the Court ordered Calhoun related to Brown. Dkt. 46. However,
 2 the Court did not consolidate the cases. This was the appropriate decision, given that the cases 3 differ in certain significant aspects.

4 Hewitt: Plaintiffs in Hewitt filed their class action complaint on March 26, 2021, and 5 assert claims against Google alleging that “Google sells and discloses to thousands of Google
 6 [real-time bidding] participants” the personal information of Google account holders
 7 (“Account Holders”) without authorization. Weaver Decl., Ex. 3 ¶ 12. Plaintiffs allege 8 “Google associates . . . unique identifiers – cookies, IP addresses, User-Agent information, 9 advertising ids, other unique device identifiers, and browsing history information – with 10 individual accounts that include names, email addresses, geolocation, and all other information
 11 Google maintains on individual account holders.” Id. ¶ 58. Plaintiffs also allege that Google 12 discloses the following data: (1) “A Google ID for each account holder”; (2) “The account 13 holder’s IP address”; (3) “A Cookie-matching service that helps the recipient match the 14 account holder’s personal information up with other personal information that the recipient has 15 on the account holder”; (4) “The account holder’s User-Agent information”; (5) “The 16 Publisher ID of the website in question”; (6) “The content of the URL for the webpage where 17 the ad will be placed”; (7) “The account holder’s unique device identifier”; and (8) “‘vertical’ 18 interests associated with the bid that include interests relating to race, religion, health, and 19 sexual orientation.” Id. ¶ 14.

20 Plaintiffs in Hewitt seek to represent a class comprising “all persons residing in the 21 United States with a Google Account who used the Internet on or after Google began using 22 [real-time bidding] in a manner that disclosed Account Holders’ personal information.” Id. ¶ 23 233. Plaintiffs have also brought statutory claims on behalf of an alleged subclass of “All 24 Google Account Holders Who Use the Google Chrome Browser.” Id. ¶¶ 367, 385, 405.
 25 Plaintiffs in Hewitt bring claims for breach of contract, violations of statutory and common 26 law, and equitable claims, and seek damages, unjust enrichment, punitive damages, injunctive 27 relief, and all other remedies permitted by law. Id. ¶ 27. At a high level, the core Brown and 28 Calhoun claims arise out of the collection of certain Chrome users’ personal information in violation of promises not to do so under certain circumstances. Hewitt alleges a broader practice of improper collection but also widespread disclosure and sale of all Google account holders' personal information, including but not limited to Chrome users. In short, while the legal claims require separate analysis, some core set of facts overlap, and the Court may find it efficient to deem them related. Because relation is within the discretion of the court, a stipulation does not accompany this administrative motion.

III. ARGUMENT

Under Civil Local Rule 3-12(a), “[a]n action is related to another when: (1) [t]he actions concern substantially the same parties, property, transaction or event; and (2) [i]t appears likely that there will be an unduly burdensome duplication of labor and expense or conflicting results if the cases are conducted before different Judges.” Here, both criteria are satisfied.

The actions concern substantially the same parties. All three proposed class actions are brought against the same defendant—Google—and the actions seek to represent overlapping classes of plaintiffs. Hewitt seeks to represent all United States Google account holders, as well as subclasses including all United States Google Chrome users (Weaver Decl. Ex 3 ¶¶ 233, 367, 385, 405), which overlap with the Brown and Calhoun classes. (Weaver Decl., Ex. 1 ¶ 192, Ex. 2 ¶¶ 1, 13, 259).

The actions also concern similar property, transactions, or events. All three actions allege similar types of users' personal information was collected or disseminated by Google, although the methods of allegedly improper collection and use vary. See e.g. Weaver Decl., Exs. 1 ¶ 93 (“By tracking, collecting and intercepting users’ (including Plaintiffs’ and Class members’) personal communications indiscriminately—regardless of whether users attempted to avoid such tracking pursuant to Google’s instructions—Google has gained a complete, cradle-to-grave profile of users[.]”); 2 ¶ 46 (“Google is reasonably capable of linking IP addresses (including those linked to user agent), persistent cookie identifiers, X-client-data headers, and web browsing history and information regarding a consumer’s interaction with an Internet website, and, in fact, does link such information with individual consumers and their

1 devices.”); 3 ¶ 58 (“Google associates these unique identifiers – cookies, IP addresses, User-
2 Agent information, advertising ids, other unique device identifiers, and browsing history 3 information – with individual accounts that include names, email addresses, geolocation, and 4 all other information Google maintains on individual account holders.”). Also, the personal
5 information allegedly disclosed by Google to real-time bidding participants in Hewitt overlaps
6 with the personal information allegedly collected by Google in Brown and Calhoun.

7 Further, the three actions assert similar legal claims and seek similar remedies. Each 8 action asserts causes of action for invasion of privacy, equitable claims, and some overlapping 9 violations of statutory and common law, and both Calhoun and Hewitt assert breach of 10 contract claims. In resolving the motions to dismiss in Brown and Calhoun, the Court 11 extensively analyzed Google’s operative Terms of Service and related policies, resolving 12 complicated issues relating to consent, disclosure, incorporation of policies and certain 13 technical aspects of common claims, like the Wiretap Act and the Stored Communications 14 Act. To resolve the claims presented in Hewitt, similar analysis is required. For these reasons, 15 the Court could reasonably conclude that adjudication of these actions would create “unduly 16 burdensome duplication of labor and expense or conflicting results if the cases are conducted 17 before different Judges.” Civil L.R. 3-12(a)(2). Plaintiffs do not believe consolidation under 18 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 42 is necessary or appropriate at this time considering that 19 Hewitt alleges that “Google shares and sells users’ personal information with Google [real-20 time bidding] participants,” and these factual and legal claims that are not represented in 21 Calhoun or Brown. Weaver Decl., Ex. 3 ¶ 79 (emphasis added). Plaintiffs believe 22 consolidation is also not appropriate given that the Hewitt is in an early stage, whereas, the 23 Court has already issued orders on Google’s motions to dismiss the Calhoun and Brown
24 complaints. Calhoun, Dkt. 147; Brown, Dkt. 113.

25 IV. CONCLUSION

26 Because the law and facts giving rise to the claims in Hewitt substantially overlap with 27 those alleged in Brown and Calhoun, undersigned counsel respectfully request that the Court 28 order the actions related but not consolidated.
